An announcement was made that another blow is seen to be served, and that men are needed immediately, and that as soon as they organize and report they will be fully equipped and sent to the seat of war.

A mass meeting is to be held in Faneuli Hell some evening this wook, to arouse the Fenian particular, which has been so long dormant. The Brotherhood in Boston is in a condition far from prosparous. The circles are all more or less diminished in numbers, and the spirit is latent. The leaders are bount to make an effort to again fill up the Order and to rouse the spirit and to again fill up the Order and to rouse the spirit and determination of Irishmen. The Faneuli Hell meeting, they hope, will bring about such results.
